Long long time ago, the jungle was divided into two parts.

The left part had all the peace loving animals who worked hard.

The right one had lions who lived on other's flesh.

The animals helped each other. But one fox was being too Mischievous.

So animals met and agreed that it would be helpful if a leader is chosen and a government too!

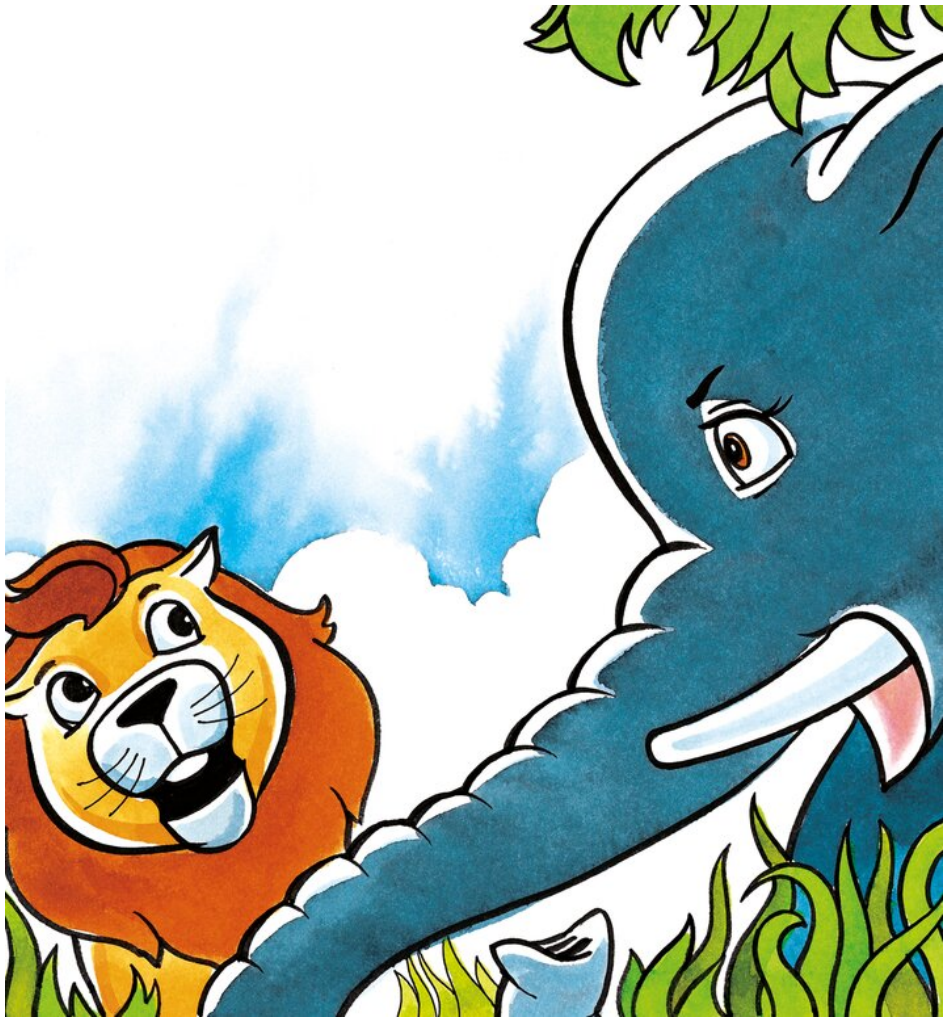
They decided on being democracy.

Everyone got one chance to vote a leader. An elephant got most votes i.e. majority

The elephant was powerful and didn't fear lion.

Everyone would listen to him because he is big and also makes loud noise.

A wise owl had warned everyone to vote with care as only power doesn’t ensure wiseness.



BUT THE elephant wasn't morally grounded and educated.

Once, he was roaming on the left part's boundary when he chanced to meet a lion.

Though he trumpeted loudly. The lion was unperturbed.

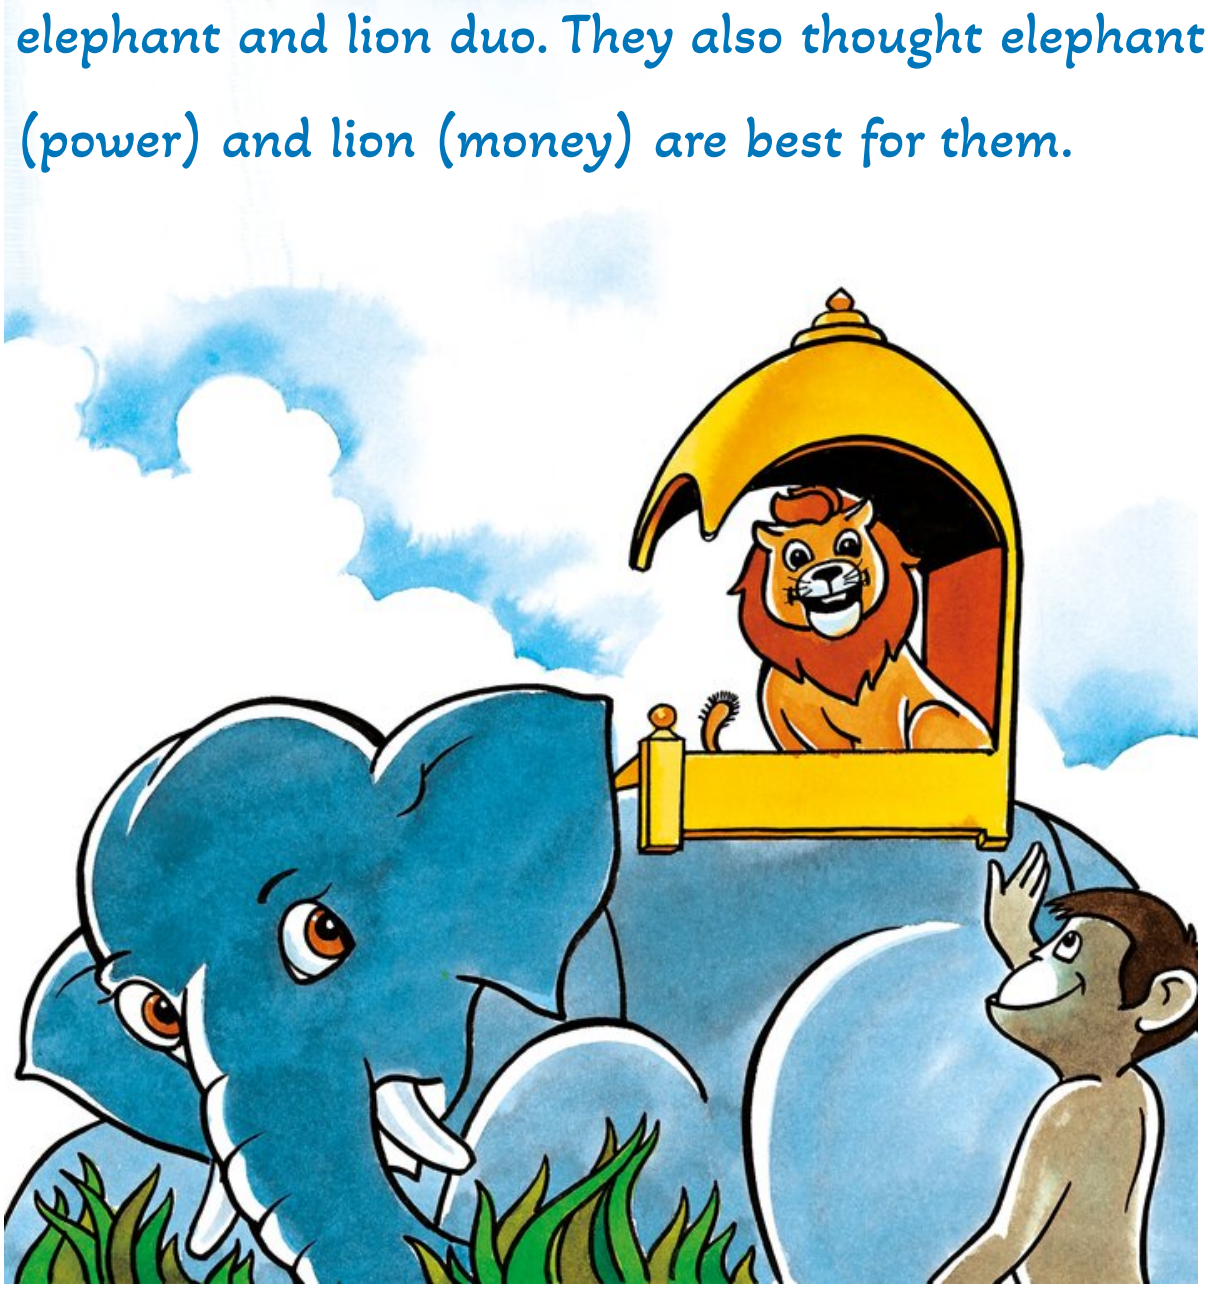
Seeing this the elephant was shocked because everyone listened to him in his part of the jungle. He asked the lion why he wasn't fearful of him. After all he is the leader.

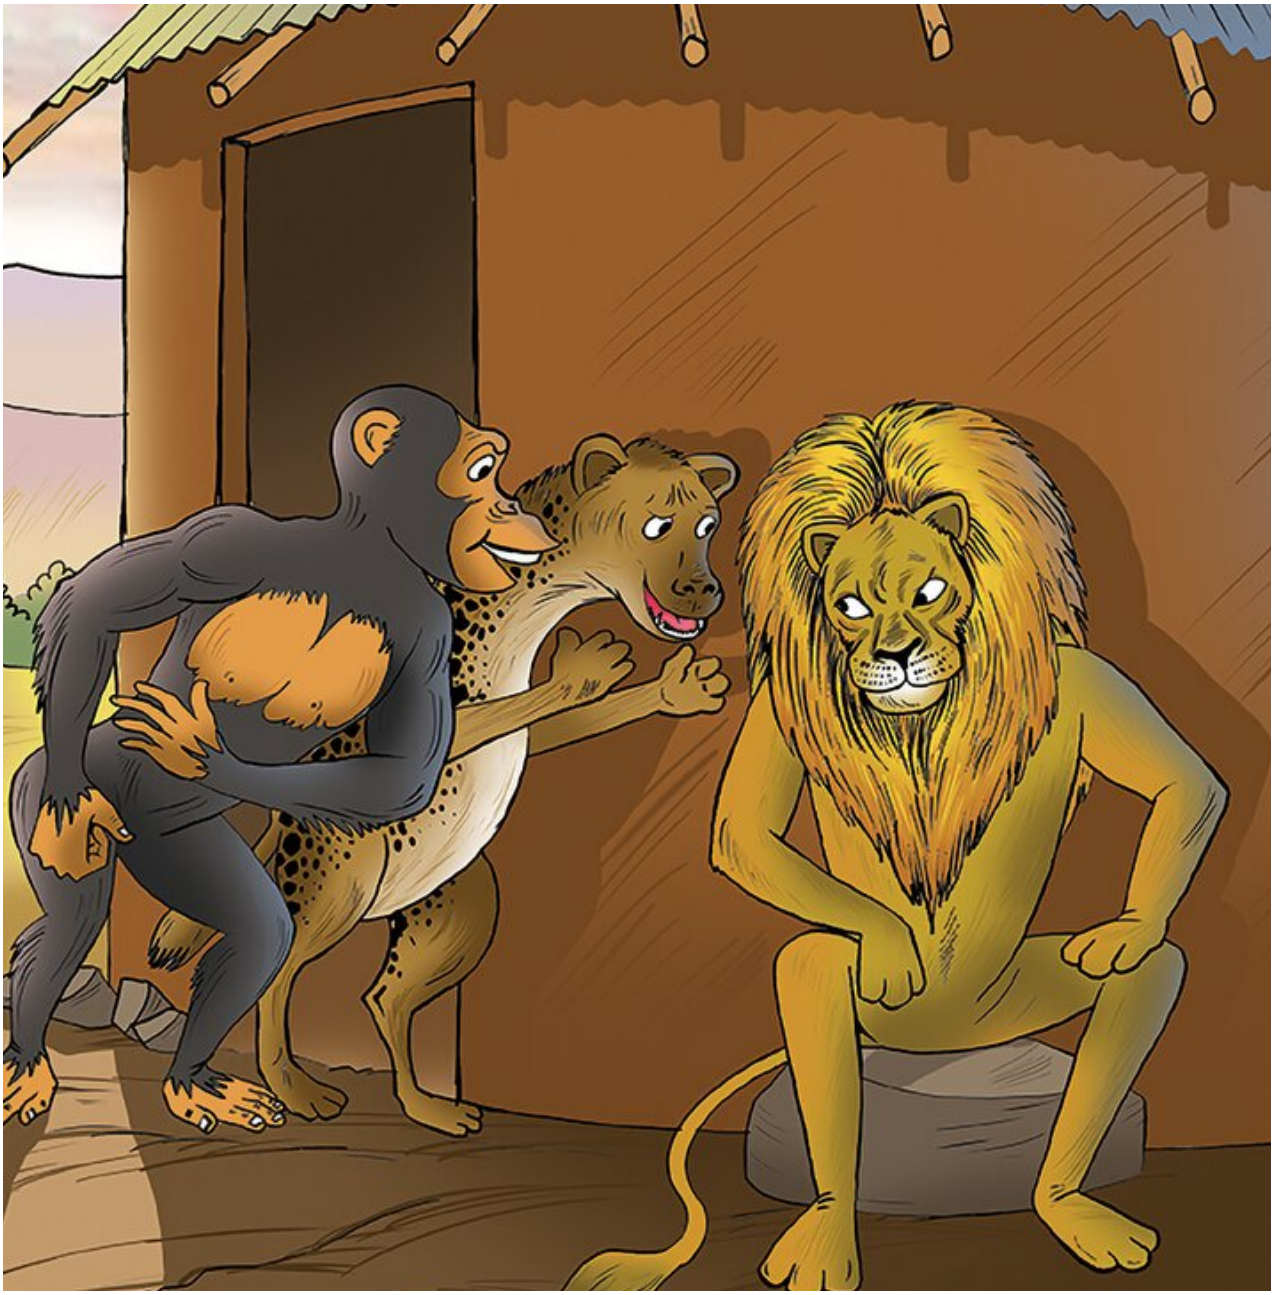
The lion said you're but an elected leader. You're always on the mercy of your voters.

The elephant was convinced that he would become more powerful if the lion joins his party. So he carried him on his back like a king.

Monkeys loved all this News! They accepted this new normal without question.

OTHER innocent animals also had to accept the elephant and lion duo. They also thought elephant (power) and lion (money) are best for them.





Lion found some loyal assistants who would keep him updated about the jungle. They brought him news daily.

Monkeys carried ALL orders of the lion to all citizens in the name of elephant.

Soon, innocent animals became his prey.

Initially they had thought they are safe, though they knew that lion can't survive without eating someone's flesh.

They were in grave danger. The lion had acted as a chameleon. His true colours were now revealed.

Their leader elephant was nowhere to be seen. They went to the old wise owl. He asked them to unite and fight.

Though everyone was fearful, they agreed to come to protest. Lion feared that he can't face so many animals united so he fled the left part.

He was informed by a fox about the march against him. This gave him time to flee.

But this is how democracy was saved.
